Healing Field flag thefts continue

Days after congressman donates replacements, another is swiped

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

"It's just sad. It's just so very sad."
That was the reaction of local attorney Marie Hellard when told Tuesday that a flag that hung over her nephew's marker at the Healing Field had been stolen.
The flag was for Timothy

Lewis, who died in 2007 while serving in the Marine Corps in the Philippines, and was one of 103 raised there in memory of Kentucky soldiers who have died since the attacks on 9/11. It remains the nation's only permanent Healing Field.
It marks the second time this month flags have been stolen there. The first two stolen flags were replaced permanently last Friday when Congressman Ben Chandler, who heard of the first theft, visited Lawrenceburg and donated two flags that had flown over the nation's capitol.

The latest theft occurred sometime between Sunday night and Monday afternoon, according to Pam Rice, vice president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

On Tuesday, Rice said the latest the fact that yet another theft has occurred is "very disturbing," and that the American Legion and its Auxiliary have already decided to offer a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of whomever is responsible.
Hellard said whoever is doing this is causing untold grief on the families of loved ones commemorated there.

"All folks are doing is opening up a lot of wounds," Hellard said. "There isn't a day that goes that we don't think of him."
Rice said along with an award, the Legion and Auxiliary are also going to consider installing video surveillance

Chamber angered when Hume breaks tie on civil offense ordinance

By Meaghan Downs

The city council voted 4-3 on a tiebreaker vote to pass the second reading of the civil offense ordinance, which will now enforce zoning violations as civil rather than criminal offenses.
The council split its vote 3-3. With Mayor Edwinna Baker absent to attend to economic development regarding Bluegrass Area Development District, city clerk Robbie Hume, in the mayor's place, voted to approve the ordinance.
City attorney Robert Myles said the statute specifically states the mayor can delegate, by executive order, all mayoral duties, powers and responsibilities. The statute prohibits the

Will Hurley get canned?

Conway says health director 'not competent,'
will move fire him

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

Embattled health department director Brandon Hurley could be looking for a new job following next Wednesday's Anderson County Board of Health meeting.
Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway, who sits on the health board, confirmed Monday that he intends to follow through with a promise he made in August to make a motion to have Hurley fired.
"Yes, I will," Conway said. "He is incompetent to be the director of the health department."
Firing Hurley would require a majority vote from the 12-member board of health, which is scheduled to meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19 at the health department building on Glensboro Road.
The meeting is open to the public.
Whether Conway gets the required votes to fire him remains to be seen. Hurley and the health board have been under fire for several years, first based on its 2008 decision to construct a new health building, and lately due to budgetary problems that have left the health board and department hemorrhaging money and nearly broke.
Hurley, who is on vacation this week and unavailable for comment, has worked since August to avoid getting fired, according to sources who declined to be identified.
Sources say that Hurley has conducted one-on-one meetings with each board of health member, in part to gain their individual support as the motion to fire him looms.
Conway confirmed Monday that Hurley had provided an information packet to board members — much of which Conway said he has been requesting for months but received just a week before Wednesday's meeting.
Conway, who wasn't judge-executive when the decision to build the new department was made, said he wants Hurley fired for a variety of reasons.
"It's a combination of things," he said.

“Along with being incompetent, he doesn’t show the people of Anderson County any respect, he isn’t courteous to board members and doesn’t give us the information we request.”

Conway said he characterizes Hurley as “incompetent” because of his inability to turn around the department’s financial woes — and continues to make decisions that make those woes worse.

“With the health department already in the financial shape it’s in, he has already hired another nurse,” said Conway, who contrasted that hiring by pointing out that he hasn’t filed two vacant high-way department positions in an effort to save tax dollars.

Conway also pointed out that, despite being ordered in each of the past two years by the health board to look for ways to cut spending, Hurley has not come through.

“He hasn’t shown any way to save money to keep from raising taxes next year,” said Conway.

The department’s budgetary problems came to a head this summer when Hurley laid out a budget that included either a significant tax increase or drastic cuts in staffing and services.

Like it did the year before, the board instead decided to supplement the budget with savings, leaving it close to broke after having well over $1 million in surplus in previous years.

During the August meeting, reinforcements from the state were on hand to sing Hurley’s praises, including the acting commissioner of public health.

“If I could place Brandon in a copy machine, I’d copy him and spread him to many other places,” said Dr. Steve Davis. That comment rankled angry people in the audience, who took turns voicing their outrage.

“You all think Brandon can walk on water, but we think you should take him to another pond,” said Georgia Kinnerly.

Those comments were followed by Conway twice saying that Hurley should resign, which days later touched off a firestorm of comments between him and Dr. Andrew Bustin, chairman of the health board and supporter of Hurley.

“Judge Conway is usually quiet in the meetings, then he makes a comment like that without saying why,” said Bustin.

“I don’t mind him making a statement, but it would be nice if he backed it up with arguments or logic instead of just saying it’s time for [Brandon] to go.”

Bustin went on to defend the health board’s decision for the new building — a decision that prompted several board members to resign due to negative public reaction.

“We did at the time what we thought was right for Anderson County,” Bustin said. “Look who was on that board — doctors, veterinarians, pharmacists — all smart people who thought there should be a building.”

Conway, who was not on the health board at that time, bristled over what he considered an insinuation that the current board is less intelligent.

“The [heck] with Andrew Bustin,” Conway said. “I will make a motion at the next meeting for him to step down, too. He can kiss my [expletive].” “If he wants to consider me a dumb-[expletive], that’s his prerogative. He doesn’t have a bit of common sense, and that’s what the world needs more of. It’s time Andy Bustin steps down as chairman. He’s been chairman too long.”

cameras at the Healing Field.

“We had never even thought about that until yesterday,” Rice said. “We were hoping that since the first thefts resulted in a lot of attention, that this wouldn’t continue.”

“We felt comfortable there wouldn’t be any other issues, then it happened again.”

During his visit, Chandler said the Healing Field represents “fallen heroes who made the ultimate sacrifice” and that he can’t understand why anyone would resort to stealing flags.

“It seems unbelievable that anyone could be so disrespectful to our fallen heroes, but I’m glad that we’re able to replace the flags and ensure that the memory of those we’ve lost is not forgotten.

“The flag is such an important symbol to our nation, and I can’t think of a better home for these flags than here at the Healing Field.”

Hellard agreed, saying she also can’t understand the thefts.

“When you go to a cemetery, it represents death and dying and a sad place,” she said. “It doesn’t represent a healing place of peace and harmony, but the Healing Field does, with the flags flowing in the wind. It represents life rather than death.”

“I just can’t grasp why someone would want to detract from that. They don’t need the flag ... if it was food or water or shelter, I could perhaps grasp it, but all they’re doing is hurting other people.”

acting mayor from presiding over the council meeting or giving final approval or veto for an ordinance, but it does not directly address the issue of voting.

“I believe that the acting mayor had the legal authority to break a tie vote,” Myles said.

Pam Rice, chamber of commerce executive director, said she had hoped the chamber and the council could meet to discuss the chamber’s proposals prior to the council’s final vote.

Rice said she was instructed to give the chamber’s proposal to public works committee members Durr and Vaughn, as well as Myles and the mayor.

“We were trying to play by the rules, we did what we were requested,” Rice said after the meeting. “Very disappointed.”

Although a possible meeting was discussed at the July 13 council meeting, the chamber and the council never met to discuss the civil offense ordinance.

“It’s been tabled for three months,” Rice said of the ordinance, “and we should have been able to have met before anything was done.”

The new civil offense ordinance states that the five-member Code Enforcement Board has authority to “enforce any ordinance of the local government, including any zoning ordinance or regulation, by classifying a violation of the ordinance as a civil offense.”

Currently ordinance violations, including nuisance and zoning, are classified as class B misdemeanor criminal offenses through district court, and individuals may be fined up to $250 daily plus 90 days in jail.

Violations designated as civil offenses under the new city ordinance carry daily fines of $10-100 if uncontested, and $25-250 if brought to the code enforcement board. Each day constitutes a separate fine.

Rice spoke before the council about her concern that the penalties doubled when contested, and if people had legitimate reasons to contest, the penalties seemed unfair.

“On behalf of the businesses of Lawrenceburg, I don’t feel that’s right,” Rice said.

Myles agreed with Rice, but cited the required two-tier fine system by KRS 65.8808.

“I absolutely do agree that the appearance of that ordinance may make people less inclined to contest, but it is mandated by the statute,” Myles said.

Council member Larry Giles, who voted no on the ordinance, said he read the same document about the state penalties system on the ordinance.

“I had to go read it. I didn’t like it then, and I don’t like it now,” he said.

Council member Ken Evans expressed the same sentiment and said he thinks the ordinance needs a re-write.

“Either way you go,

it’s a no win proposition,” Evans said.

Evans, who voted to approve the second reading, said if the chamber was so opposed to the ordinance, there was time for Rice to say something about it.

“It’s been laying out there on the table since July the 11th, I just thought it was time to get off the table or throw it in the trash can,” Evans said.

Council member Sandy Goodlett said he voted no purely as a procedural vote, as he was under the impression that the council would not act on the ordinance until the sign ordinance had been worked out.

“It was just the timing of it that surprised me in that whole process,” he said. “I’m like anybody else who looks at that ordinance; it’s backwards in that it looks like it’s trying to quash the public being able to appeal, but the way the statute’s written, it’s just one of those statutes that’s in conflict with common sense. It was legally correct and kind of common sense wrong.”

Myles said the council, stating that the chamber’s input is important and the council and committees will still review the chamber’s submitted proposal regarding sign ordinance changes.

“This does not change the fact that we still need to move forward on the sign ordinance,” he said.

Sign violations, designated as Chapter 11 for zoning regulations, will be enforced and classified as civil offense violations, Myles said, with the civil offense classification being less burdensome than its previous criminal.

“We need to work with the business community and not in opposition to them,” Myles said.

The ordinance will be effective upon its passage and advertisement in The Anderson News.

Troopers chase, catch armed robbery suspect

Fleeing suspect says 'thank you' when store owner says she will pray for him

From staff reports

A Harrodsburg man who police say robbed a Nelson County drug store Monday morning was nabbed in Anderson County following a vehicle and foot chase.

William R. Keeton, 37, crashed his car and ended up in a field about 20 feet off Highway 53, about 10 miles south of Lawrenceburg. He then jumped from the vehicle and took off on foot, but was quickly tracked down by troopers with the Kentucky State Police.

Trooper Kevin Davis caught Keeton and used a Taser and pepper spray to subdue him, according to a report from the state police. Keeton attempted to disarm Davis, who sustained minor cuts and bruises during the scuffle, the report said. Davis was treated and released at Flaget Hospital.

Keeton was treated at Frankfort Regional Medical Center for undisclosed injuries before being taken to the Nelson County Jail.

An air-operated pellet rifle and other evidence was recovered by detectives with the Nelson County Sheriff's Office.

Keeton was charged with attempting to disarm a police officer, first-degree fleeing or evading, first-degree wanton endangerment, third-degree assault of a police officer, resisting arrest and numerous traffic offenses.

Snider Drug co-owner and pharmacist Steve King said a man entered the Bloomfield drugstore about 8:45 a.m. Monday and demanded drugs, stating he had a gun in a duffel bag he was carrying.

Wearing a blue hood and a handkerchief over his mouth, Keeton initially approached King's wife, Jeanie King. "[He] had a gray duffel bag and said he had a gun in it," Steve King said. "I never saw the gun, but you know, you don't want to take a chance on calling his bluff."

"She walked back here with him and he made the same demand of me," Steve King said. "He was pretty nervous. I think he was more scared than I was."

"He listed specific drugs that he wanted — oxycodone ... oxycontin and morphine," King said.

King said he gave Keeton some of the drugs he demanded and he left within two to three minutes.

Jeanie King said she was never scared during the robbery.

"I just felt really bad for the kid. He seemed like a young person. ... It's just unfortunate, you know, the way the economy is, that these kids are resorting to stuff like this," she said. In fact, King said she spoke to him on the way out the door. "I told him I would be praying for him, and he said 'thank you.'"

"I gave him enough time to get out the door, and then I went out to see what kind of car he got in," Steve King said. The man was parked the wrong way on Fairfield Road around the corner from Snider's Main Street store front, and King said he could see the reflection of the man's light blue Kia in the window opposite Snider's Drug.

Detective Jonathan Snow of the Bardstown Sheriff's Office examines a car driven by a man police say robbed a Bloomfield drug store Monday morning. He led Kentucky State Police on a chase that ended after the man left Highway 53 in Anderson County and ended up in a field.

"The reflection of the window across the street — I could see him ... but he couldn't see me," King said.

King then called the police, and a Kentucky State Police trooper was able to intercept the car, which King saw driving back through Bloomfield with police in pursuit.

A clerk who was in front of the store at the time of the robbery, Mary Chesser, also was not injured.

The Anderson County Sheriff's Office and Lawrenceburg Police Department assisted in the chase.

Ignorance does not equal bliss

There is an old adage that says those who don't bother to vote shouldn't complain when politicians make decisions they don't like.

The same goes for those who refuse or don't bother to read their local newspaper. Twice during the past two weeks some who live on Harry Wise Road have said during fiscal court meetings that they weren't fully aware of circumstances surrounding a developer's desire to build a subdivision there because "not all of us take The Anderson News."

That certainly is their choice, but like choosing not to vote, it is one that comes with inherent consequences.

Included in those consequences is not being aware of significant changes to their community. Nearly every week this newspaper and thousands like it print legal notices for local government bodies which outline their plans to alter or adopt laws, spend money or weigh issues such as zoning changes.

News articles oftentimes accompany those legal notices, giving readers additional insight to the issues.

No, articles and legal notices about tax rates, budgets and zoning changes aren't particularly exciting, and often require one to use his or her own power of discernment to decide if what is being proposed is good or bad.

lated among residents that was woefully short on facts and long on unsubstantiated innuendo.

We understand that not everyone is particularly engaged nor are they overly interested in what is going on where they live. Many work elsewhere and are content to commute home from their jobs and close their front doors to the world.

When it comes to information about taxes and spending, they prefer to hear the talking heads on Fox or MSNBC lambaste the left or right and quietly fume behind those closed doors.

Meanwhile, they are missing information about taxing and spending right where they live — along with a chance to have an actual impact on those decisions.

No, articles and legal notices about tax rates, budgets and zoning changes aren't particularly exciting, and often require one to use his or her own power of discernment to decide if what is being proposed is good or bad.

We get that, but those articles and notices are also vital information that, if ignored, can hit you squarely in the wallet.

There's another old adage that says forewarned is forearmed, and yet another that says ignorance is bliss.

The first is easily obtained by subscribing to your local newspaper for a year, which in our case costs less than half of the average monthly cell phone bill.

The second is just as easily obtained by not subscribing, but comes at a much higher price: allowing others to make decisions on your behalf without any input from you — including building a subdivision in your own back yard.

Go right ahead and occupy

It's catchy. "I am the 99 percent." Born well after the era of rallies in the '60s and '70s, I've never seen or experienced a protest first hand.

I tend to protest with my pen or my mouth, and not necessarily with marching or picket signs.

Occupy Wall Street, for those of you not on the frontlines of New York's Liberty Plaza or knowledgeable about its grassroots campaign across the United States, is defined as a leaderless movement protesting alleged Wall Street greed.

Some call it a campaign for communism. Others declare it a rally for understanding.

Either way, I'm just glad people care. For too long we've been happy being comfortable with indifference.

It was only until the 2008 election that 56.8 percent of the population decided to show up to the polls, the highest voting turnout since 1968.

Of course, there are the neatly packaged calls for change, under the stylized banners of political posturing. Party members who become fair-weather fans of the most attractive team with the most influence and PAC funding.

But political discourse could be so much more than that, especially when it involves us.

I admire the people, on whatever side of whatever issue, who decide to forgo temporarily real life responsibilities to stand up for something they believe is important.

That's a trait to be admired, not deplored.

We talk a lot about the Constitution, about what's constitutional today versus what should be deemed unconstitutional tomorrow.

Two constitutional freedoms we often fail to mention, besides religion and speech, are assembly and petition.

Two freedoms we frequently fail to exercise.

With the exception of perhaps the 10,000 strong Revolution March on Washington in 2008, there hasn't been a protest of this magnitude or growth in years.

I don't need to declare myself as an advocate of any side of this economic debate to admire the Occupy Wall Street movement.

I just believe the protest participants, as a whole, are a collective, intelligent body wanting questions answered, not just an ignorant and confused Times Square flash mob gone awry.

But inserting myself into the protests' story, as the magazine "American Spectator" editor Patrick Howley apparently did, won't be my goal.

I'm merely an anthropologist of our nation's current climate, watching to see how the speeches and protests affect present and potential culture.

Occupy Wall Street may camp out on Wall Street's doorstep for another month or just a few days.

Regardless, they've taught me, the observer, one thing: use your voice, even if you're never heard.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stolen flags: more questions than answers

To the editor:

Last Friday morning I attended the ceremony at the Healing Field at the American Legion.

I was so glad to see a large group gathered for such an important event.

As I listened to Congressman Ben Chandler, state Rep. Kim King and other officials, I stood there trying to understand why anyone would steal a United States flag, especially one that had been flying over a marker representing a fallen hero.

I gave up. I can't understand and was appalled over such disrespect to the flag and to the memory of those fallen soldiers.

Congressman Chandler presented flags that had flown at our nation's Capitol. They were raised to replace those that had been stolen a few weeks ago. Once the new flags were raised, we all placed our right hands on our chest and recited the Pledge of Allegiance.

It was a great feeling to be a part of such an event. As I was leaving, a representative of the American Legion Auxiliary asked if I would accept a flag that had flown temporarily on those exact posts, while awaiting the arrival of the flags from Washington. They asked if we would fly one of those flags at the courthouse. I was honored to accept.

I think we all take our freedoms for granted. We should always be thankful to God for the freedom that we have in this country to gather, whether it is at a community event or a worship service.

I also want to encourage anyone who hasn't visited the Healing Field and the Wall of Honor to do so. It is a great experience and you will leave feeling humbled and glad you went.

The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary have worked diligently for several years to create a place that honors our veterans and our fallen heroes. We should all thank them for what they do for our community.

Always support our soldiers and veterans, thanking them every chance you get.

Jason Denny

Truck, tractor pull benefited community

To the editor:

I attended the truck and tractor pull the weekend of the Burgoo Festival on both Friday and Saturday nights.

I was amazed to see so many people in attendance, the very young and the old, like me.

The event was well planned and organized by Eddie Carey as a fundraiser for a gentleman with cancer.

When you see Eddie, tell him thanks for a job well done.

Eddie has a vision for the motorsports park to become one of the premier pulling tracks in the nation, and if last weekend was an indication, Lawrenceburg could become just that.

I have heard nothing but positive comments about the event from everyone I have talked to. I was a little surprised to not see any coverage in The Anderson News, though. When thousands of people converge on our community for a sporting event like this, a few pictures and a few words would seem entirely appropriate.

Wall Street mob playing right into Obama's hands

To the editor:

The most recent newsmaker takes place in the Big Apple — protesting Wall Street.

These protesters have taken to the street with the intention of wreaking havoc upon capitalism. When interviewed these concerned citizens seem to agree upon one common thread and that being the 2010 bailouts issued by the United States Government to a tune of $787 billion of our tax money is somehow linked to Hurricane Katrina and former president, George Bush. (Although President Bush does acknowledge that he could have done more at the time of that hurricane, some seem to forget that help and aid could have been there sooner had the governor and mayor opened up the doors and let the federal government intervene before things got so out of hand).

As far what has caused the economic crisis now, I guess they still think Mr. Bush in president emeritus status since January 2008, can mysteriously continue to push buttons and make policies.

The media would like to depict the crowded streets of New York and other cities lined with protesters who have been encouraged by the likes of Michael Moore, Timothy Robbins and Frances Fox Piven, as similar to the crowds who formed in support of the Tea Party.

Of course the left-leaning media jumps right on board, covering every action quickly joining the fray to report and support their cause. One might think back, what did you see when the Tea Party had concerns? Yep, you guessed it, they made the newscasts portray the Tea Party as a bunch of racists, anti-Americans and terrorists.

The Tea Party movement, as it is called, was formed in part to protest and call for less governmental power, whereas this movement/protest seems to be in support of taking down capitalism. Recently, we saw a video of protesters behaving like zombies mouthing word for word thoughts spewed out by Frances Fox Piven, an activist whose goal has been to change the face of this nation and bring down or collapse our system.

She along with her husband, Richard Cloward, now deceased, promoted social welfare and advocated a reliance on government for all of our needs. In contrast, capitalism is what has made this country a great nation lending support and encouraging those who still have visions of creating goods that in turn give people jobs so that they do not have to rely on the government for their income or needs.

Then there is George Soros, another name remaining behind the scenes funding some of the demonstrations we are seeing, who also has a vision to collapse our economy to enhance his own visions of the world he thinks we should have, even though he and others like him have made their money thanks to capitalism.

Soros and our own government seem to work against us as far as creating jobs, with policies such as giving money to Brazil to drill for oil in the Gulf, though we Americans are not allowed to do it because of environmental constraints they say, then in turn we the taxpayers pay Brazil for the oil and then pay for it a third time at the pumps. Makes a lot of sense, doesn't it, if we are trying to help this nation stay afloat? And we are redistributing the wealth to whom?

When the president was asked about these protests in the street, he quickly quipped that he "had heard of these demonstrations," and based on his ideas about redistribution of wealth and how to tax the "fat cats," one might deduce these anti-capitalistic demonstrations play right into his hand.

What amazes me about him and those who seem to be leading this country down this path they have chosen, is the fact that many of them are in fact the fat cats.

So, now if you've worked hard to become a plumber, farmer, banker, grocer, doctor, lawyer — whatever your plight in life — and you are or were somewhat prosperous, paid your taxes, Social Security and been law abiding citizens, be prepared to lose your fortunes in order to combat our country's economic woes and at some point you may even lose some of the benefits you paid into.

What makes it even harder to accept is the fact that those who are in office get privileges (like their own insurance plan), that we ordinary folks don't get to enjoy, so they won't lose anything by some of the policies they are trying to put into place.

Though we don't begrudge them benefits, it is only fair that we should all be on the same equal playing field as to what we should have or not have because according to some of those elites, we should all have our fair equal share.

We Americans are charitable in our own actions and it should not be mandated by any government or other entity, when and how much we should or should not give — and that especially holds true by this current administration. Our income is our own, taxed in accordance with the law and it is therefore unlawful for anyone to create a utopian society that severs that which was written by our forefathers. And sadly, the division of our society continues to grow, those on the left, those on the right and those caught in the middle to decide what to do and what to make of it

Gardening doesn't have to end with fall and winter

Last week I felt like I was starring in "Gone with the Wind," repeating that famous line "I don't know nothin' bout birthing no babies! I had 10 charges, waiting to come out into the world, each with a different due date. I was babysitting the butterfly nursery, and it was totally cool!"

Cheryl Steenerson
Columnist

The butterfly nursery is in the rain garden at the library, with numerous Monarch butterfly chrysalis inside. The Monarch is considered the "king" of butterflies because of its beauty, hence the name "monarch."

The Monarch goes through four stages in its life cycle. It starts with the butterfly laying the egg, usually laid on the underside of a milkweed leaf. From the egg comes the caterpillar (larvae). Then, the caterpillar makes a type of silk cocoon, called a pupa or chrysalis. The butterfly then emerges from the chrysalis. The life cycle starts in February or March and ends in October.

What amazes me is the sheer beauty of the monarch chrysalis. Smaller than a grape, the jade green bag looks like it's been crafted by an artist. Polished to a high gloss shine, the pale green is dotted with flecks of glittery gold, with a solid line of gold encircling the top. The result is a tiny, magnificent ornament.

As the butterfly nears birth the color of the chrysalis turns to dark green, then almost black. That's when it's only hours away from breaking out into the world. The butterfly emerges, then hangs on the empty sack for hours to dry it's wings. Then, off it flies, in search of liquid nourishment and a mate. They honeymoon for months in Mexico or California.

Mother Nature sure makes the world an interesting place. It's always changing. Just like the weather. Two weeks ago we were covering up for frost protection. Last week it was in the 80s! All we can do is adapt.

Many of you know that I experiment with growing something inside during the winter. I just can't go cold turkey from gardening. This year I have three tomato plants growing indoors. Right now they are 7 inches tall and getting plenty of heat and sun near the window. Soon, I'll have to turn on the fluorescent lights in order to give them 10 hours of light per day.

The lights will give off extra heat to keep the room warm enough for growth, but not like the summer sun. I used the Stupice variety because they have a 75 day harvest period. These are the same kind of tomatoes that you see in stores during the winter. They usually come with a little vine attached in a red mesh bag.

Most are grown in green houses during the winter, hydroponically (in water). Mine are being grown in soil in 18 inch deep pots. I'll fertilize the plants every 2 weeks with a liquid organic fertilizer, along with occasional tea and egg shells. I'll let you know how things progress.

A reminder for those with indoor plants, please clean your leaves as often as you dust the furniture. Dust on the leaves reduces the amount of light (energy) that the plant can gather and reduces the amount of food it can make.

Who wants to be on a diet all winter!

Those of us with wood stoves and fireplaces will have to dust more often, but the ashes produced over the winter can and should be saved for the summer garden. I use a tin trash can with a tight lid. Any excess, not stored, is scattered on the lawn. It adds potassium, the K in the NPK of fertilizers. A garden needs 1-2 pounds of potassium per 100 square feet of soil for the season

Now, time is flying so get going! The butterflies are heading south, so winter is coming. Don't let those 80 degree days fool you, just get to work. The Old Farmer's Almanac mentions snow for the end of October. Jeesh! Happy Growing!

Yes, you do need a flu shot

Getting a flu shot often protects you from getting the flu virus.

And while the flu shot doesn't always provide total protection, it's still worth getting.

Influenza (the flu) is a contagious respiratory infection that is caused by the influenza virus. According to the Centers for Disease Control & Prevention (CDC), an average of 5 to 20 percent of the population in the United States gets the flu.

More than 200,000 people are hospitalized from flu complications and about 36,000 people die from flu. Some people (such as older people, young children, and people with certain health conditions) are at high risk for serious flu complications.

Fortunately, the flu vaccine offers protection against the flu.

The CDC indicates that the flu shot is between 70 and 90 percent effective in warding off illness, depending on the length and intensity of a given flu season and your overall health.

In some instances, people who get a flu shot may still get the flu, but in this case the illness will be less severe and there is a decreased risk of complications.

So, do you really need to get a flu shot? Yes. In order to obtain the best protection from getting the flu, you should get a flu shot.

Each year the vaccine changes, so even if you got the flu shot last year, you will need to get another one.

Anderson County Health Department is currently offering flu shots for $25 or free with Medicaid, Medicare Part B or Humana Commonwealth.

No appointment is necessary. For more information "like" us on Facebook or visit us online at www.achdonline.org.

Girl Scout troop gives to, receives from soldiers

Girls receive American flag from Iraq base in return

By Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

The children in Afghanistan love Girl Scout cookies. "They like the Caramel DeLites and Tagalogs," said Bobbie Mayes, a soldier who just returned from Afghanistan in May. "They absolutely loved it. It brought a true smile to their face."

Mayes, who worked to empower Afghanistan women to manage their own businesses, received a package of cookies, letters and other items from the states from a Lawrenceburg Daisy troop during her year-long deployment. "You're so cut off and isolated that anything from home brings a smile to your face, gives you something else to talk about other than the mission, reminds you of home," Mayes said.

Daisy Girl Scout Troop Unit 1572 wanted to do exactly that, give packages and correspondence to US military.

Bobbi Morgan, one of the assistants with the Girl Scout troop, said the idea began when the national Girl Scout association started a Girl Scout cookie program last year to donate cookies to the troops.

Morgan said her troop decided to send packages to people they knew, such as Mayes, Morgan's neighbor and Lawrenceburg resident; Army Staff Sgt. Terry Tessena, a high school friend of Morgan's from Pennsylvania; and Bill Stoker, a soldier from Florida serving in the Navy, and the husband of a friend of Morgan's in Florida.

"We didn't know who got them, but we all knew personal people who were in the military ... we could put a face to a name," Morgan said.

Five girls spent a Girl Scout meeting held at the end of August at Edwardo's restaurant making cards. Morgan and her daughter Bailey picked up the other items for the packages, such as candy and magazines.

Bailey wanted to make sure to send Tessena a fuzzy "pet" made out of craft pom-pom balls, so that he wouldn't be homesick.

"For 6-year-olds, I am so impressed with them," Morgan said.

"Very big hearts for little girls."

Morgan didn't expect, however, to be getting a package in return to share with her troop.

The day Tessena received his package from the girls in the mail, he took a picture with his fellow soldiers, and sent it to Morgan in an e-mail.

Morgan said although she knew Tessena from high school, she never expected personal correspondence from him to the Daisy troop.

"It's very gratifying. After reading his letters and e-mails, to know they that are doing something, we appreciate [it]," she said.

On Sept. 30 Morgan received a package from Tessena in the mail, which included a handwritten and signed letter for the girl scouts, as well as an American flag and a certificate that stated the flag flew above the Special Ops task force central in Baghdad, Iraq on the 10th anniversary of 9/11.

"The girls, I don't think, realize the significance," Morgan said. "We had two parents crying, and they [the girls] were excited, of course."

Morgan said the Daisy troop will definitely be putting together more care packages for soldiers in the future, and are looking for more local Anderson County soldiers to send them to.

Mayes, whose husband will be deployed to Iraq next year, said receiving packages from back home is very important to military members, who usually share letters and food with fellow soldiers.

Her children, ages 5 and 7, have classmates who are girl scouts, and said she knows that local Girl Scout troops are always looking for military members to send packages to.

"Hopefully, possibly my husband will be one of the recipients of that," Mayes said.

Despite objections, Harry Wise Road subdivision will likely be built

Fiscal court will settle issue during Oct. 17 meeting

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

Several hours of arguments, debate and impassioned pleas last Thursday to prevent a developer from building a subdivision off Harry Wise Road won't likely amount to a thing.

Larry Cann can and almost certainly will build his subdivision. The only real question is how many homes he'll be allowed to build.

Dozens of Harry Wise Road residents came out in force to make their case before the Anderson County Fiscal Court, including a Lexington attorney they hired to argue the law.

Their objections centered on a pair of recommendations from the joint Planning and Zoning Commission to deny the subdivision — recommendations that had to be approved or rejected by the fiscal court.

They further objected to the subdivision based on traffic and safety concerns, along with the change 16 new homes would have on their rural neighborhood, located off Harrodsburg Road about halfway between Lawrenceburg and the Bluegrass Parkway.

Cann, who lives in that community, has twice attempted to have the 16-acre tract of land he owns rezoned from its current A1 designation, which requires homes be built on 2 acre lots. His first attempt was to have it rezoned R1, which would allow him to build 64 homes; the second to A2, which would allow 16 homes. Both were denied by planning and zoning despite both attempts being suggested by the commission's consultant, Beth Jones of Bluegrass Area Development District.

Then, last month, Cann took his case to the fiscal court, which voted to allow the A2 designation, but not until it could pass a land-use restriction rule that would prevent Cann from using the property for other than his stated purpose.

Following that meeting, residents said they were unaware that the fiscal court could make such a move, and flooded a subsequent meeting to state their objections.

Because that meeting amounted to a legal proceeding, residents could not voice overall objections, which prompted the fiscal court to call for a special hearing which would allow them to do so.

That meeting was last

Thursday, and nearly a dozen residents stated their case.

Once the public hearing closed, Magistrate David Ruggles made a motion to accept the planning and zoning denial, which resulted in a 3-3 tie, meaning the motion failed.

That means the planning and zoning recommendation stands unless the fiscal court decides otherwise.

That could still happen. By statute, the fiscal court has 90 days from the date of the planning and zoning decision, which expires Friday, Nov. 8.

The fiscal court will meet in a special called meeting at 10 a.m. Monday, Oct. 17, and Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway said the issue will be decided at that time.

"We'll allow the A2, if the court approves," he said. "If not, we'll take the recommendation given to us by planning and zoning."

He added that the public is more than welcome to attend, but made it clear that there will not be another public hearing on the matter.

Further complicating the matter is the fact that, since making its decision on Cann's property, planning and zoning has altered the definition of A1 to allow homes to be built on 1-acre tracts as long as public sewer is available, which, in this case, it is.

The fiscal court would need to approve that change, which Conway said is likely to happen but not until its Nov. 1 meeting.

Once approved, Conway said the bottom line is that instead of being allowed to build 16 homes, Cann would then be allowed to build 15.

"What this really comes down to is him building one less home," Conway said.

Even if that isn't approved and the zoning remains A1, Conway said Cann will still be able to build eight homes on the land.

Hoping Steve Jobs accepted Jesus Christ

Computer whiz Steve Jobs was a pioneer, a business tycoon, a visionary, a leader and a global influence.

He was also reportedly a Buddhist.

I certainly hope Mr. Jobs accepted Christ as his personal savior. If not, according to what Jesus Christ said, he is not in heaven, which is all the more reason for us to make sure our friends and family have truly accepted Jesus Christ as savior, lord and God because "false religion" takes us to hell.

Jess Thompson
Guest columnist

A personal relationship with Jesus through the mercy of the cross is the only way to heaven (Matthew 7:13-14). It is undeniable that Steve Jobs truly left the world a better place. However, the Bible is very serious and specific regarding how we live our lives and what happens when we die.

Furthermore, the Bible is very clear on who we worship. The first of the Ten Commandments is "Thou shalt have no other gods before me."

Jesus's own words from Matthew 16: 26, "What good will it be for a man if he gains the whole world, yet forfeits his soul?" Or, "What can a man give in exchange for his soul?"

How do you wish to be remembered when you leave this earth? Do you wish to be known for your success and wealth? Or perhaps you wish to be remembered for your devotion to Christ?

Is it possible to have church alone? This question shows that there is a misunderstanding concerning the very nature of the church. The term church comes from the Greek word ekklesia. This term is used 114 times in the New Testament and is to be defined as an assembly of citizens. The group assembled has a purpose and with that purpose one determines what this group is called; it could be a mob, a sporting event etc. The term as it is used in reference to God's people is a group dedicated and assembled for the purpose of honoring God.

Jesus taught that there is a distinction between the individual and the church (Matt. 18:15-17). Notice when just one or two were together it did not mean the church was acting. Again the term church means a group gathered; therefore one person does not constitute the assembly. So it is impossible for one to sit at home and claim to be the church. See also 1 Cor. 12:20, 27.

The church is not a physical building, but a dedicated assembly coming together to worship (Heb. 10:25). It is in this coming together that the church does collectively what it cannot do when it is not assembled. Churches come together on the Lord's Day (Sunday) to take the Lord's Supper and give (Acts 20:7; 1 Cor. 16:1-2; 2 Cor. 8-9). It is also at this time that the church sings to God, prays to God and hears God's word proclaimed (Heb. 2:12, 13:15; Eph. 5:19; 1 Cor. 11:18-34). It is sinful, as a child of God, to sit at home claiming to have worshipped as the church.

Friday makes high school sports special

If you can't get worked up about Friday night, then you just don't like sports.

And I am not talking about that overhyped love-fest set for Rupp Arena.

We're tearing football. Blood, sweat and tears football.

Franklin County and Anderson County will kick it off at Warford Stadium. They are neighbors who have not met on the gridiron in five years. The schools have had heated rivalries in other sports. Some of the kids have known each other for years. Sometimes they are even related.

This year, both teams are ranked the state's Top 10 teams in Class 5A.

Let the fun begin at 7:30 p.m.

It could be a real test for the scoreboard, which was not working properly Friday night when Anderson hosted West Jessamine. Franklin is averaging better than 50 points a game, Anderson 40.

But most importantly, the winner has the inside track on winning District 6 while the loser could be as low as the third seed. Not only does the winner get the district trophy, but will also host the first two games of the state playoffs and could be at home all the way through the state semi-finals.

It is a game that could cause teenagers to be become even too hyped.

"Yes, it is a big game," Anderson coach Mark Peach said Monday, "but it is the next game. In this district, the next game is the big game."

Peach has referred to the district race as a grind and one that will test a team's adaptability. "That is one thing I like about this team," he said after Friday's romp past West Jessamine. "They have had to win some games by slugging it out. They have had to win some with special teams. They have had some where we scored a lot of points. They have found ways to win."

Finding a way to win Friday will include finding a way to slow down Franklin County's Ryan Timmons. "He's one of the best players in the state of Kentucky," Peach says.

That's like saying the sun comes up in the east.

Timmons accounted for 374 all-purpose yards on just 11 touches in Franklin's 57-25 win over Woodford County last week. He had seven touchdowns and a two-point conversion for the unbeaten Flyers.

On the year, Timmons is averaging nearly 20 yards a carry when he's running the ball and a whopping 34 yards every time he catches it. He's scored 30 touchdowns.

Maybe the state Class 2A champion in the 100-yard dash last spring should forget the state and go after the world. "I am not sure if anyone has notified the U.S. Olympic team about Timmons but if they would like to win the gold medal, he would be a great start," Peach quipped.

Peach says Chris Roberts (491 yards on the ground) and Daniel Anderson (419 yards) give a good complement to Timmons.

But what could take emotions even higher on both sides is the presence of Logan Woodside at quarterback for Franklin County.

A year ago, he was wearing Anderson red, where he played in the backfield and linebacker but backed up Seth Carmichael under center. At Franklin, he's thrown for 1,708 yards and 21 touchdowns. Carmichael's numbers are similar with 1,577 yards and 18 scores in one less game.

Riley advances in state golf tourney

By John Herndon

Kaitlyn Riley found that things can be better the second time around.

The Anderson County High School sophomore drastically improved her showing at the girls' state golf tournament in Bowling Green last weekend. Riley made the first day cut with a 14-over 86, then shot a 91 in the second round to finish with a 177 score, good enough to tie for 44th place in the tournament, held at Bowling Green Country Club.

A year ago, playing on the same course, Riley went out after the first round when her 97 failed to make the cut.

Caldwell County's Emma Talley dominated the competition with a 6-under 138 for her third state championship in four years. North Hardin's Lydia Gumm finished second, 10 strokes back.

Riley, who had survived a sudden death playoff to advance to the state, had mixed feelings about her performance. "I was a little disappointed with my overall score but I was glad to make the cut," she said in a message from her Facebook account.

Riley started well as she teed off from the No. 10 hole last Friday. Riley carded a 3-over 39 for her first nine holes, but ran into trouble after her turn. She bogeyed No. 1, then after parring No. 2, double bogeyed four of her next five holes.

Riley said her experience on the course helped, but she was still jittery. "When I teed off it was the fourth time I had played the course so I felt more comfortable playing the course," she said. "I can't imagine anyone not being nervous playing in the state tournament."

Bearcats roll past West Jessamine

Cats, Carmichael etch names in record books

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson County simply prepared for a football game.

No question that it was a special one, being the last homecoming night for a senior class that has spent most of its high school career ranked in Kentucky's Top 10 teams in Class 5A. But no one could have seen the onslaught that was coming.

What the Bearcats got was a night to remember as several offensive records fell in Anderson's 72-18 thrashing of visiting West Jessamine.

The Bearcats bested the school record for points scored in a game and quarterback Seth Carmichael set the school mark with six touchdown passes. Anderson had previously scored 70 points at Casey County in 1996 while Carmichael and Jacob Russell had both thrown for five scores in a game.

and never punted. However, even the stat sheets could not do justice to how badly Anderson dominated.

"We had a great week of practice," Anderson coach Mark Peach said. "We had a great homecoming week here at the school."

But Peach had also warned that the Bearcats could not be looking ahead to a much-anticipated showdown with Franklin County next week. Both are ranked in Class 5A's Top 10 and both are unbeaten in District 6.

Franklin beat Woodford County Friday night, 57-25 to remain unbeaten at 8-0.

We talked to the guys about how in 2009, we were supposed to have this big showdown with Oldham County. The week before, we played South Oldham and completely stunk it up. On the other side, Oldham County beat Grand County in overtime. Both teams were looking ahead to the game the next week," Peach said. "We told them if you want to have a great homecoming experience, you've got to have a great homecoming game."

"We talked about that every day," Carmichael said. "The coaches kept on use every day to focus on this game. We wanted to use this game as a stepping stone"

There was no looking ahead this time. It was obvious from the outset that Anderson was concentrating on West Jessamine Friday night.

The Bearcats recovered a West Jessamine fumble on the first offensive play of the game, then quickly drove 31 yards for a score with Granville Hayes finding the end zone from five yards out.

"That was big," Peach said. "It was like getting the kickoff in both halves."

Hayes finished with 67 yards on only five

Senior Night match called when coach ejected

School contends official did not follow KHSAA guidelines

By John Herndon
Sports editor

Senior Night for the Anderson County High School boys' soccer team came to an abrupt end Thursday when the lead official called the game just 14 minutes into the contest.

North Hardin was leading Anderson County 1-0 when Bearcat coach Brett Morris was issued a red card and ejected from the game after an argument with official Mike McCord. McCord then declared the game to be over despite pleas from both teams to continue the game.

Anderson County athletic director Rick Saltee provided the name of the official to The Anderson News.

In the 14th minute, Anderson was called for a foul in the penalty box. As North Hardin's Elijah Linscott prepared to take the penalty kick, the official stopped play to issue a yellow card, or a warning, to Morris, who was about 12-15 yards onto the playing field at mid-field.

The official motioned for Morris to return to the bench area, which he did. Morris, however was still protesting the call when the official ran toward him, then issued a red card, or an ejection.

The official and Morris appeared to still be having words for a brief time after the red card was issued.

The ejection carries an automatic suspension of three games under Kentucky High School Athletic Association rules. If Anderson does not play three games in the current post-season, any portion of the suspension not served will carry over to the 2012 season.

As of Monday afternoon, the KHSAA website's public listing of disqualifica-

Brown commits to OVC school

Lady Bearcat hoopster heads to Jacksonville State

High School girls' basketball player Sydney Brown has made a verbal commitment to play for Jacksonville State of the Ohio Valley Conference.

Brown made her commitment on Friday and is expected to sign with the Gamecocks during the early signing period in November. A commitment, however, is not binding on either the player or school until the signing.

Brown said she chose Jacksonville and coach Annette Watts after visiting the school. "I really liked how the team came together as a family," Brown said. "I also really liked the campus."

Jacksonville State, located in Jacksonville, Ala., went 10-21 last season, Watts' first at the helm. The team has three returning starters and an 8-player freshman class that includes Candace Morton of Henry Clay.

Brown, a 6-foot-1 center, says she believes she will get a chance at playing time as a freshman. "I feel as though if I work my hardest and get better, that I will get playing time as a freshman," said Brown, who also heard from Georgia Tech, Tennessee Tech

DeLong named MVP during fall series

From staff reports

Team Black got a run-scoring single with two outs in the bottom of the ninth to win the Seventh Annual Cols' World Series, defeating Team White, 1-0, on Saturday at Gary Wright Field in Danville. The win is the fifth straight by Team Black.

Playing a five-inning game due to the number of pitchers available, the teams found themselves in a pitchers' duel after a 13-8 score in game one of the series.

Sophomore pitcher Kyle DeLong, of Lawrenceburg, and senior Brian Bascom (Cincinnati, Oh.) matched each other pitch for pitch in five innings.

Until the bottom of the fifth, the two pitchers combined to allow only one runner on either team to reach third base.

Bascom retired the first two hitters he faced in the fifth, but junior Chase Ely (Middlesboro) singled and DeLong walked. Sophomore Sean Cole (Teaneck, N.J.) then singled to the right-centerfield gap to score Ely and give Team Black the 1-0 walk-off victory.

DeLong was named the Series' Most Valuable Player after throwing five shutout innings and allowing only two hits with one walk and seven strikeouts. The sophomore hurler was also the winner of game one and finished the series allowing three runs - all unearned - over 10 innings, with three walks and 12 strikeouts.

Bascom was the tough-luck loser after allowing only one run in 4.2 innings on three hits. He walked three and struck out two in the defeat.

Freshman Joe LaRocco (Louisville) had the only other hit for Team White, a double in the second inning, while senior Jordan Ellis (Crestwood) had a double in the first for Team Black's third hit of the game.

Centre concluded its annual fall season Oct. 9 and then begins the off-season in preparation for the 2012 spring season.

Early muzzleloader deer season held this week Oct. 15-16

By Art Lander, Jr.

Ky. Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources

The first of two seasons created especially for hunters who want to take deer with muzzleloading firearms is coming up.

Kentucky's early muzzleloader deer season, which debuted in 1990, will be held this year on the weekend of Oct. 15-16. In the past decade, the muzzleloader deer harvest has averaged 16,272 deer a year. A high of 19,918 was taken during the 2004-05 season, and a low of 13,179 bagged last season.

"Because its in mid-October, our early muzzleloader season often gets impacted by hot weather," said Tina Brunjes, deer and elk program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

"The amount of mast (acorns) available to deer is also a factor in how many deer are taken. A bad mast year pushes deer out into the open, to forage fields and food plots, and that tends to increase the harvest," said Brunjes.

Wildlife biologists checking trees on 45 routes across the state as part of the department's annual mast survey found that 30 percent of the white oaks and 76 percent of the red oaks produced acorns this year.

"The department's mast survey has been conducted annually for over 50 years. In 2007, we adopted a standardized protocol of checking marked trees, so we could share data with other states in the region," said Ben Robinson, small game biologist for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "Based on what we observed, this year's mast crop is rated poor for white oaks (20 to 39 percent of trees produced mast), and good for red oaks (60 to 79 percent of trees produced mast), said Robinson.

Oaks, especially white oaks, are the most important tree species to wildlife in Kentucky forests. They produce acorns that are a critical food source for squirrels, white-tailed deer, wild turkey, black bear and other forest species.

Wildlife prefer white oak acorns because they are more palatable. The acorns produced by red oaks are much higher in tannin, which makes them bitter.

White oaks can produce acorns every year but entire crops are often lost due to late freezes, summer droughts or untimely rains when oak flowers are pollinating. Red oaks are more reliable year to year because it takes two years for red oak acorns to mature and not all trees produce mature acorns in the same year.

"White oak stands make excellent places to set up a ground blind or tree stand. Find a white oak that has acorns, and you've got a good place to hunt," said Brunjes. "Deer will travel a considerable distance to feed on white oak acorns."

She has another suggestion for hunters.

"If you're trying to reduce deer numbers or improve the buck-to-doe ratio in your herd, go ahead and take a doe during the early season. It's not going to mess up your hunting for bucks during the rut," said Brunjes. "You need to think of the big picture when managing deer on your hunting property."

Muzzleloaders have always been part of Kentucky's hunting history and culture. During Kentucky's muzzleloader deer seasons, hunters may use traditional muzzleloaders, such as flintlock longrifles and percussion half stock rifles, or modern in-line muzzleloaders of any caliber. Legal equipment also includes optical sights, round balls, conical bullets and sabot bullets.

Kentucky's late muzzleloader deer season is actually the older of the two seasons. It was first held in November of 1985 as a two-day hunt in 52 counties. Hunters could take only antlered deer. At that time not all 120 counties were open to deer hunting, and the state was divided into seven deer management zones.

Through the years the late season was lengthened and the bag limit liberalized. The season was eventually moved to mid-December. By 2004, the late season had expanded from seven to nine days and opened statewide.

By then, hunters could take deer of either sex in all four of the states deer management zones. This year's late muzzleloader dates are Dec. 10-18, 2011.

Bearcats advance to semis on Prichert's late goal

To play powerful Woodford County in Wednesday's showdown

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

When post-season comes, all that matters is to survive and advance.

Anderson County learned that old truth Monday night when the Bearcats slipped past upset-minded Frankfort in the first round of the District 25 Tournament, being played on Anderson's home field.

Garrett Pritchert headed home a corner kick with 3:37 to play to give the Bearcats a 1-0 win. Anderson earned a shot at top-seeded Woodford County in the tournament semi-finals to be played tonight, Wednesday, Oct. 12 at 6 p.m.

Anderson had beaten Frankfort, 4-1, back on Sept. 15, but the fifth-seeded Panthers had gone 5-3 since that time, including three wins during a trip to Scotland that ended last week.

This time, Frankfort goalie Bailey Spade put on an incredible display of keeping the ball out of the net despite Anderson's relentless pressure. Spade stopped countless shots, pulling them out of the air, diving to stop shots on the ground and doing everything in between.

At least until Pritchert, a sophomore, sent a corner kick just out of Spade's reach. The goal set off a wild celebration for the Bearcats.

It was the culmination of an evening when Anderson had everything go its way, except for the net. Less than five minutes into the match, Josh Doolin appeared to be open on a breakaway, but just missed the shot.

Seconds later, the Bearcats missed on a corner kick.

In the 28th minute, Anderson junior Luke Smith appeared to be open on a break but Spade somehow kept the ball away from the net.

While Anderson dominated the first 40 minutes, things began to get a bit scary for the Bearcats after intermission. Frankfort began to get some offensive rhythm and got some looks during the early stages of the second period, but the Panthers' biggest chance came midway through the half on a breakaway, but Anderson goalie Drew Bamberger make a solid clear to stave off the goal.

The Bearcats will face a monumental task Wednesday, when they tangle with Woodford. The Yellow Jackets beat Anderson, 3-0, back on Aug. 27 and have won seven of their last 10 games and tied two. The Yellow Jackets will be looking to repeat their district championship of last year, while Anderson is still looking for its first district championship.

In the other semifinals, Western Hills, a 3-0 winner over Owen County on Monday, will play Franklin County in the other semifinal at 8 p.m. on Wednesday.

The winners will advance to next week's regional tournament, to be held at the winner of the 25th District.

Lady Bearcats romp past Owen County in district tournament

By John Herndon
Sports editor

Eight different players scored, including a first-ever hat trick by senior Tori Yeaste, as Anderson County routed Owen County 10-0 Monday in the first round of the Girls' 25th District Soccer Tournament, being played at Sower Soccer Complex in Frankfort.

The game was called with 33 minutes still to play due to the "mercy rule."

It took Anderson about 10 minutes to figure out Owen County's offside trap defense before the deluge began, according to Lady Bearcat coach Jason Earnest.

"The game was 100 percent dominated by us," Earnest said. "Owen County's best player was out due to an (anterior cruciate ligament) tear suffered last week. She is a very nice player and they missed her, for certain."

Earnest said he tried to hold the score down the best he could, giving everyone on the team at least 10-15 minutes of playing time before halftime and using many players in different positions. Earnest said he used four different players at goalkeeper, including junior Andrea Melanson, who was in the net for the first time in her soccer career.

In addition to starter Emily Mager, Earnest put Maddy Ruble, Melanson and Brittany Frith in the net. He was also warming Yeaste up to take over in the goal, but, "with 33 minutes left in the game, Kimmy Damron gets open and rips a shot from about 25 yards that goes in over the (Owen) keeper's head, assist to Courtney Fallis. This was the 10th goal and the game ended," Earnest said.

The Lady Bearcats took control quickly, as Caitlyn Maillet took a pass from Yeaste to score on a cross 10 minutes in. "A very nice shot," Earnest said.

It took just 27 seconds for Anderson to add to the lead as Yeaste got her first goal, finishing off an assist from Taylor Clark, who continued a pass from Courtney Fallis. Clark would finish with three assists and a goal.

Yeaste's other goals came off assists from Clark and Mager. Mager, who Earnest touts as one of the state's best goalies, came out of the net early and was credited with a goal and an assist.

Other Anderson players that scored were Frith, Ruble and Sandra Nava.

Damron and Maillet were also credited with assists.

After taking 10 minutes to find the goal, Anderson scored five times in 12 minutes, prompting Earnest to make the wholesale changes. "I tried to get the second half to be fun," Earnest said. "I really switched some things up, but I gave my seniors a final chance to score."

Anderson moved on to a long-anticipated semi-final matchup with Franklin County, played Tuesday night after press time. Results of that contest can be found at www.theandersonnews.com.

"I didn't really want to win 10-0, but with Owen not having their best player, things got going in our favor fast," Earnest said.

EJECTED

tions had the incident listed three times, but school principal Ronnie Fields said that was in error as only one red card was issued.

"Talking with the KHSAA, there was some confusion on how the other sideline officials should document the incident," Fields said in an e-mail. "They incorrectly documented the incident using the KHSAA DQ site. My understanding was that the other red cards were going to be removed from the public listing of DQs. Not sure when that will happen but that is my understanding from the KHSAA."

Morris, a paraprofessional who does not teach at the school, will be allowed to coach the Bearcats during practice, but assistant coach Robbie Chadwell will run the team during games, according to Fields.

During a Monday interview, Sallee allowed that Morris crossed a line, but contended the established protocol for stopping play was not followed.

"Did (Morris) overreact to the call? Probably. But it was unfortunate the game was called," Sallee said. "I feel like given due process, Brett would not have wanted the red card."

Sallee was not at the contest, but has reviewed film of the incident.

"Brett was saying, 'Why do you call that down there and not call it down here?'" Sallee said. "You can hear it on the tape of the game. That is when the official gave him a yellow card. Then Brett said, 'If that is what it takes to get an explanation, I will take it.'"

"That is when the official sprinted to him. Then he gave him the red card. There was not a profanity by either of them."

Sallee and other school officials were troubled by the time that elapsed from the time the yellow card was issued until the game was called.

"There were 25 seconds between the time of the yellow card and the red," said Sallee, who timed the events from the tape. "Then there were 14 seconds between the red card and the game ending."

According to the KHSAA handbook, it is a violation of Bylaw 11 to terminate a contest without following a standard procedure.

The handbook says, "Officials will be penalized by the Association for terminating a contest before the normal end of regulation play without trying to secure the assistance of game management or security to rectify the problem. Such penalty will be governed by the Officials Division Licensing policies."

Sallee said none of the officials did that.

Anderson assistant athletic director Jeremy Cook was in charge of the game. Fields and assistant principal Bridget Wells were also working the game.

Cook said he was stationed in a cart at the southwest corner of the field, diagonally across from the Anderson bench.

"When I saw Brett get the yellow card, I started over there," said Cook, who drove around the school track. "By the time I got to the North Hardin bench (on the northwest side of the field), they had red-carded him and called the game."

After the game had been called, Morris could be seen showing Fields and Wells that he believed he had moved back to the bench area after the warning.

Cook, who was assigned to give the officials a ride away from the field, said the North Hardin players were as stunned as Anderson.

"Three of four of their players were saying, 'Please let us play,' but the official said 'He was not going to leave.'"

"I cannot honestly say I heard the referee tell Brett to leave."

An e-mail to the KHSAA requesting information about the incident had not been answered at press time.

At one time, Morris had a reputation for getting red cards and the Anderson soccer program had been the state's most penalized team in any sport as far as ejections about five years ago.

Since then, though, Morris has not had any serious run-ins with officials.

Sallee estimated it has been at least five years since Morris had been red-carded and the team's ejection totals have been in line with, or below, other schools that offer soccer.

Anderson had one player red-carded in 2010 and two players ejected a total of three times in 2011.

With that in mind, the school plans no further disciplinary action against Morris, other than the KHSAA suspension, Sallee said.

Bearcats vs. Flyers: What is at stake

Winner gets inside track at district crown

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Before the season, Franklin County football coach Chris Tracy said in an e-mail to Anderson News sports editor John Herndon, "I believe the district race will be decided in the last two weeks."

The last two weeks are here and Tracy has been proven right. Over the next two weeks, the post-season destinations of three teams, Anderson County, East Jessamine and Franklin County, will be determined on the field. Anderson and Franklin both control their own destinies, while East Jessamine looks more to be a threat for the second seed, but could still win the district if certain things happen.

This week, Anderson County hosts Franklin County while East Jessamine is at West Jessamine. Next week, Anderson is at East Jessamine while Franklin is at home against Montgomery County.

In other games, Montgomery hosts Woodford County on Friday and Woodford is at home against West Jessamine the following week.

The various scenarios are actually rather clear.

Franklin County beats Anderson County. In that scenario, Franklin wins the district, no matter what happens the following week. Even if Montgomery County pulls the upset at Franklin, the worst Franklin could do would be a tie with the Anderson-East Jessamine winner. Franklin would win the tie-breaker based on head-to-head competition. Under that scenario, the Anderson-East Jessamine winner would be second and the loser third. (That is assuming East Jessamine beats West Jessamine.)

Anderson County beats Franklin County and East Jessamine. Under that scenario, Anderson wins the district no matter what anyone else does. Franklin would be seeded second, East Jessamine third. (That is assuming East Jessamine beats West Jessamine and Franklin beats Montgomery.)

Anderson loses to both Franklin County and East Jessamine. Under that scenario, Franklin wins the district, East Jessamine is second and Anderson third, no matter what else happens.

Anderson County beats Franklin County but loses to East Jessamine. That is where things can get interesting. Under that scenario, assuming Franklin and East Jessamine win their other games, things would be thrown into a three-way tie. A tie between three or more teams is broken by adding together the total number of wins by four defeated opponents not involved in the tie-breaker. If there is still a tie, the process goes to a fifth team until the tie is broken.

After the games of last week, Franklin had a slight lead on the tie-breaker with 14 wins while Anderson had 13. East Jessamine had five. Anderson could get a boost from several teams while East Jessamine could get a huge jump with a win over Wayne County the final week of the season.

The bottom line is that Anderson, Franklin and East Jessamine have all clinched playoff berths, but only Anderson and Franklin control their own destinies. East Jessamine needs help to win the district but controls its own destiny for the crucial second place finish and a first round home game in the playoffs.

The fourth seed will most likely be the Montgomery-Woodford winner, but that could change if Montgomery upsets Franklin.

Anderson County quarterback Seth Carmichael gets some instruction from head coach Mark Peach Friday night.

Bearcats say farewell to 'special group' of football seniors

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson County says goodbye to 13 football seniors on Friday night.

It is a group that has made up one of the most successful classes in Anderson County football history.

The Bearcats will celebrate Senior Night before the final regular season home game of the year versus Franklin County. Anderson could host several playoff games later in the year.

Two members of the class have re-written several team records as well. Running back Ethan Kelly became Anderson County's all-time leading scorer earlier this season.

Despite not playing until his junior season, Kelly has scored 258 points, breaking Anthony Stratton's mark of 240 that had stood since 1973. Kelly also holds the single-season scoring record, 186 points, set last year.

Quarterback Seth Carmichael became sole owner of the record for touchdown passes in a game when he threw for six against West Jessamine on Friday. He's thrown for 47 in his career could end up being the all-time yardage leader if the Bearcats go far enough in the playoffs.

Carmichael has thrown for 4,266 yards in his career to this point.

Center Chris Fitzpatrick has committed to Northwestern. When he signs in February, he will be the first Anderson player to sign with an FBS school, formerly known as Division I, since Bob Ware in 1968.

Most importantly, though, the team has forged a 31-12 record in its four years and made the regional final last year.

"This group has been so special. It is a group that hasn't cared about who gets the lime light or the glory," said Anderson coach Mark Peach. "They just cared about winning and cared about each other."

carries and scored twice. However, he went down with an ankle injury in the third quarter and his status for the Franklin game is not known.

The Bearcats struck even quicker in the second half as Carmichael found Ross Cox for a 61-yard touchdown on the first play after the break. That made it 52-12.

Hayes hauled in an 18-yard pass from Carmichael on Anderson's second series to make it 14-0 and the rout was on.

Carmichael ended up connecting on 13 of 16 passes for a career-best 361 yards.

"It was Coach Peach's play-calling. The receivers made great catches all night. The line played tremendous. Everything worked together well," Carmichael said.

"I could not be more proud of the guys up front. The line has had some injuries, but the ones up front did a great job," Peach said.

Carmichael had 51-yard scoring strikes to Cox and Blake Curtsinger, then hit Spencer Ruggles for a 62-yarder before halftime. "Seth made a good read on that play," Ruggles said. "Seth made the right reads every time, no bad throws."

Anderson built a 45-12 lead at the break, then pushed the lead to 58-12 when Carmichael hit Ethan Kelly for a 20-yarder midway through the third quarter.

With the clock not stopping after Anderson got the lead to 45 points, the Bearcats scored on a 66-yard drive midway through the fourth quarter. Ryan McGregor did the scoring honors from seven yards out. Inside the final minute, Nathan Cox found paydirt from three yards out.

Anderson was so explosive that the Bearcats averaged better than 13 yards a snap and the 72 points came despite Anderson having the ball for just over 22 minutes. The Bearcats had 10 plays going for 20 yards or more.

Anderson's third touchdown might have summarized the Bearcats' night. Getting the ball at their own 23 after a punt, the Bearcats got a 26-yard run from Ethan Kelly, then Carmichael found Cox for the 51-yarder.

It was that kind of record-setting night for the Bearcats, but in the only record that counts, it was just another win.

"There were a couple of times we had the ball and on the first play we scored. That felt good, but we are going to have to play better against Franklin to come out with a win," Carmichael said. "I try keep up with records, but records are not everything. How we do in the year is more important."

"Winning a regional championship would mean more to me than the records."

Game notes

*Sophomore linebacker Nathan Cox picked off a pass and returned it 58 yards to the West Jessamine 5, but Anderson stalled, the only time the Bearcats were stopped.

*Senior kicker Bill Rose finally missed an extra point in the third quarter. Rose had not missed all season and has now hit 97 of 99 PAT attempts over the last two years.

*Several Anderson players wore pink socks in support of Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Anderson will spread it around more, while Franklin understandably wants the ball in Timmons' hands. In both major statewide computer polls, Franklin is ranked seventh in Class 5A, Anderson eighth.

It's really that close.

And in a game that fans on both sides have been pointing to all year, there is a good chance something or someone unexpected will be the difference.

"We just need to keep to the formula that has been successful for us to this point," Peach said. "We need to continue to work hard, prepare and everyone accept the roles for this week."

AUCTION
Historical Stone Home Built before 1840
Saturday, Oct. 15, 2011, at 9:30 a.m.

Located at 101 West Main Street, Frankfort, KY
The owner of this property does not reside in the state of Kentucky. She has determined that she can not devote the time to maintain this property due to the distance from her home. We are pleased to have been selected to offer this Historical Home at auction on the above date. This home has a long lineage dating back in the early 1800s hundreds, according to the Historical Marker in the front of the home. It is stated to be the earliest surviving stone home in the city of Frankfort. It is constructed of patterned river limestone with jack arches over the windows and doors. The builder, John Hampton, was a tavern owner in Franklin County. A tour of this home will be one that certainly will be of interest to those who love older homes with such a long history as this one has. If its walls could only talk what a history lesson on the Commonwealth of Kentucky we would receive.
Features of this home: the living quarters of the home (walk in and upper level) are 4 bedrooms, living room, 2.5 baths, 7 fireplaces, library, family room that overlooks the Kentucky River and the State Capital, dining room, sun room and kitchen. The colors used in the home were chosen by the former owner, because they were many of the original colors. Renovation of the plumbing, electrical and tin roofing completed in 2005. The lower basement level is unfinished and has flooded when the Kentucky River is at a high level.
Open for viewing on the following dates
Thursday, Oct. 6, from 4 to 6 p.m.

AUCTION

Historical Stone Home Built before 1840
Saturday, Oct. 15, 2011, at 9:30 a.m.

Located at 101 West Main Street, Frankfort, KY

The owner of this property does not reside in the state of Kentucky. She has determined that she can not devote the time to maintain this property due to the distance from her home. We are pleased to have been selected to offer this Historical Home at auction on the above date. This home has a long lineage dating back in the early 1800 hundreds, according to the Historical Marker in the front of the home. It is stated to be the earliest surviving stone home in the city of Frankfort. It is constructed of patterned river limestone with jack arches over the windows and doors. The builder, John Hampton, was a tavern owner in Franklin County. A tour of this home will be one that certainly will be of interest to those who love older homes with such a long history as this one has. If its walls could only talk what a history lesson on the Commonwealth of Kentucky we would receive.

Features of this home: the living quarters of the home (walk in and upper level) are 4 bedrooms, living room, 2.5 baths, 7 fireplaces, library, family room that overlooks the Kentucky River and the State Capital, dining room, sun room and kitchen. The colors used in the home were chosen by the former owner, because they were many of the original colors. Renovation of the plumbing, electrical and tin roofing completed in 2005. The lower basement level is unfinished and has flooded when the Kentucky River is at a high level.
